WATERING IN 2023

WORDS ON WATER FOR 2023

Conservation is still the Key...

"Officials are still calling on residents to use water efficiently as the summer nears."

"Utah will continue to be one of the driest states in the country and water conservation remains critical to our long-term sustainability."

"The City is continuing to move forward with best practices to use less water year over year."

With a record amount of precipitation received over the winter, there will not be any cutbacks this year on irrigation water.

Click on the link below to discover more details about 2023 watering recommendations.
